Preparing for adulthood from the earliest years

- In our recent survey, young people told us that they would like to have more information about how to prepare for adulthood from an early stage.
- We want the training and information we put together to be coproduced with families, so that it matches what you want to find out and is in a form which is easiest for you to access.
- We are offering three sessions (two online and one face-to-face) so you and your young person can tell us what will help build your understanding and confidence. These are not training or advice sessions.
- You and your young person are welcome to join a session for 10/15 minutes to share your thoughts, or you can stay for the whole session. Practitioners who work with families are welcome too.
- For the online sessions, you don't have to speak or use your video – you can share ideas via the 'chat' and we will record them visually.
